How to execute a function using a variable (like var functionName = function())? Example 1, with the function being one of this variables: function (x, y) { return x + y; } example 2, with the function being one of this variables: function (x, y) { return x + y; } function (z, w, x, y) { return x + y; } Let's assume that the variable 'variableName' can be named anything. A: You can use this syntax. Execute the function using the var functionName = function statement. function functionName(x, y) { return x + y; } var functionName = function(x, y) { return x + y; } // Call function using the var functionName = function statement functionName(1, 2); Note: This should be used carefully. If the function you are calling contains arguments, and you don't pass arguments to it then you will be passing the function name as an argument. var functionName = function(x, y) { return x + y; } functionName(1, 2); The idea for a Summer Session festival began with Hot Sauce Week Los Angeles Listen live July 12, 2012 FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: Santa Barbara, CA (May 29, 2012 1cb139a0ed
