combinations. Damage and health are dropped into a health pool. A TBR is carried in pouches and equipped using slot rechargers in the TBR skill. Can only be carried and used by TBRs. Canonically, TBRs are used to free individuals and objects from chutes (such as mines and prison blocks) using gravity to dislodge them. TBRs should be used with great caution to avoid taking damage if a person or object is not freely falling down the chute. If, in the event of a failure, it is seen that a TBR has caused more damage than was received, the TBR will be automatically ejected to prevent further damage. TBRs may be used to access areas above a chute that NPCs and players cannot access normally. For example, using a TBR placed above a ladder reduces the amount of time a team can spend looking for the ladder, thus increasing their chances of success. A player is equipped with a TBR using a slot recharger. Items can be accessed using a TBR to mark the point the chute is to be dived from or to otherwise find the chute quickly when necessary. TBRs can throw their own thrown knives, thus a maximum of 3 thrown knives can be equipped. An exposed thrown knife damages a person on impact. In addition, the first 1,000 packets of thrown knives that are dropped from a TBR reduce the damage received by the player who threw them by a maximum of 50% and reduce the ammunition used for the next thrown knife to 5 packets. If the TBR is below the vortex or the chute face, players tend to let gravity do the work and attempt a dive as soon as the player is 2 chute widths above the chute face, and let gravity do its worst. If the TBR is above the chute face, climbing on top of the chute prevents the player from jumping and falling deeper into the chute until they are below the chute face. The player may also exploit the opportunity of lining up the horizontal axis of the vortex with the gravity vector, dragging a TBR to the ground with the anchor, climb or dive into the chute using
