Q: Can't access POM document after bundle update, get "NoClassDefFoundError" I have an Java app that uses the Hadoop libraries. I'm using Maven to build it. It runs fine on my development machine. But when I made a bundle of the app, it throws a NoClassDefFoundError on the Hadoop libraries when trying to run it on another machine. Here's the full error stack. I'm fairly certain that the problem is that the Hadoop libraries aren't available to the new process. I've tried running the.jar from the command line and I get the same result. Is there something else I need to setup? Thanks.
