His unusual job became a YouTube phenomenon which is the main source of income for his family. The boy and his family are self-made internet stars. They're known as the 'Youtubers' for their unusual job. His father, an unemployed public school teacher, started his YouTube channel, but left it, due to lack of time and financial strain. His mother was the creative force behind his unusual project. When the family tried to make their channel popular, a YouTube algorithm recommended the boy to appear in a court and find a lawyer. But, the boy is only 12 years old and doesn't understand the consequences of doing such a thing, so, he did it. Initially, his unusual channel received more than 5,000 views. After that, its popularity grew, so it received more than 30 million views. His channel has been listed in the NewTek Top 15 channels on YouTube. According to him, his real job is to play video games and watch video anime. Later, the boy and his family started to have more interesting projects, including his own video game. He also bought his own second computer which is connected to the first one. His family earns their living from their YouTube channels. His father plays video games to earn some money and his mother is a painter. His unusual job has been documented in an independent Japanese film, which was shown at the 2013 Sundance Film Festival in Utah, USA. There are a number of other curious videos of people who are forced to do various odd jobs, as seen in the following videos. Do you think this boy is crazy or his parents are crazy?
