Get Outta My Face "Get Outta My Face" is a 1979 song by the British rock band the Who. Written by guitarist Pete Townshend and vocalist Roger Daltrey, the song marked the band's return to Top 40 music following the grunge-influenced Quadrophenia (1973). The song was released as the first single from the band's 1979 album Who Are You. The single hit number three on the US Billboard Hot 100 chart and number-one on the Canadian RPM Top Singles chart, becoming the band's first Top 40 hit since "Pinball Wizard" peaked at number 35 in 1975. It also charted within the top 20 in Australia, New Zealand and the United Kingdom.

Composition "Get Outta My Face" is the only song on Who Are You to feature the lyric "petrol-head" in the lyrics. Daltrey sings it with frustration and contempt; Townshend plays a fast and high-octane guitar riff with a rocking rhythm section of Glyn Johns on drums and Simon Phillips on bass. The song was an outtake from Quadrophenia, a new style of Who that broke away from blues-influenced rock. It initially featured more funky guitar riffs and unconventional song structures, but the arrangement in Who Are You is simpler. Chart performance

In an age of fading civility, the golden bonds that held civilization together have eroded, leaving people free to follow their own desires. Their world has splintered into three kingdoms: a Kingdom of War, a Kingdom of Desire, and a Kingdom of Fancy. Each kingdom is ruled by a powerful warlord who cares more about authority than law. Their people live in fear, shunned and pauperized for their unnatural desires; but forbidden wealth has caused their minds to weaken with greed, complacency, and apathy. THE KINGDOM OF WAR

The Kingdom of War is dominated by the Iron King Xelca and his Little Dragon, who has allied with an organization for underprivileged orphans. Endeavor, the captain of the Iron King's army who also serves as a guard, is a formidable magical tactician who cares about power more than protection. His world has received a new vision after revealing the "god" that watches over the world: Cid, a heavenly being who showers his strength on those who rise against the call to live simply and protect and value humanity. When Endeavor receives his “divine awakening” and is possessed by his “soul successor,” he ascends into the “All-Seeing Eye”
