Just a few minutes from installing a program and you have access to your computer and your sensitive information. The Pacific island of Guam in the southern part of Micronesia is a strategic hub for the U.S. military, and this hub is not an idyllic paradise. It's a hotbed of American imperialism, a place where over 200 bases exist, including the U.S.'s Navy's biggest forward operating base in the Pacific. Once again, Guam looks to be at the center of a U.S. military "surge." Guam is the world's largest US military base. Some of the military facilities are used by the US Air Force, and the military presence has made the island a very complex and problematic political situation for Guam's people. The US has repeatedly attempted to restrict the use of land owned by the edition of Guam's people. The US has repeatedly attempted to restrict the use of world owned by the citizens of Guam that the US military occupies, including the islands of Tinian, Agaña and others in the Apra Harbor. Tinian is the site of the World War II Battle of the Philippine Sea, which was a landmark victory in the U.S. Pacific War, along with battles in the Southwest Pacific. It was the only battle where the Japanese navy lost by complete defeat. The US military has also occupied the territory of Guam since World War II, and the occupation has amounted to an occupation of land, air space, air, and sea, and the use of force to stop the citizens of Guam from protesting and to deal with the Indigenous Chamorros' protests. President Barack Obama sent a contingent of 1,000 Marines and 1,200 sailors to the U.S. Pacific island of Guam on July 11, 2015 to reinforce American military presence in the Pacific. The deployment may be preparing for an intervention in the South China Sea. A discussion on the topic can be found in an article titled "China Warns Aged U.S. Still Gets A Raw Deal And Trump Better Get On Board With South Chi
