Stay in VR and change your life with Polybius: "There is a big difference between what we had with the BPI and what we have with the NDP." – Doug Ford It was late November of 2016 and my phone was filled with calls, texts, and emails, all from Ontario Progressive Conservatives (OPC). They were my new friends and they were urging me to vote for them in the upcoming provincial election. They were saying that the NDP was so left-wing and out of touch, and the Conservatives were so right-wing and out of touch. I was pretty skeptical, but I was being asked by so many different people that I decided to listen to what they had to say. My first visit with the OPC was in the OPG region office in Whitby. They were friendly and eager to share with us. They were happy to talk and to take questions. I was impressed. Then, after my visit, they followed up with a visit to a small microbrewery in the Durham Region town of Oshawa. They arrived in a nice van and were already drinking beers. I didn't know what to think. The first experience with the OPC in their Oshawa office was a success, so they didn't really need to impress me with their Oshawa visit. But when they pulled into the pub parking lot, they got out of the van with several beers in tow and started talking with some patrons in the bar. My confusion wasn't lost on them. "Oh, so we're the PC beer guys, eh? We're here to drink beer!" It was early 2018, and I had to be convinced that the OPC was more than what it seemed. I travelled to Oakville, Kitchener, Hamilton, St. Catharines, and London. The OPC was everywhere. It was always happening. It was a party. The party brand was always accompanied by real people who had real stories to tell. This was the PC brand that Ontario

What's new in Underworld Dungeon:

: Psycho Baron is a 2001 Japanese animated science fiction movie produced by the studio Bardel. The film is based on the members of the band BIRD, directed by the director of the first game series, Kazuyoshi Sogabe. The movie features all members of the band, except the drummer Kengo Ohkura, in an adaptation to fit with the common setting of the games and the subsequent television series Psycho Quest about a group of heroes called Squealers that fight a group of evil psychos called the Evil Herds. The film also inspired the second BIRD music video video series, Calm Town. Plot The Earth has ceased to exist because of an explosion that happened at the end of the 22nd century, which induced an explosion from their planet. The story starts in 2021 about a space race between the United Kingdom and China, who want to rule Earth. The British League has built the entire Moon space base and the United States is building a space station called Lunar Station America. The moon base grew to contain 120,000 humans. The British League scientists develop a new weapon called "the Maniac", which purports to control people with the nervous system. "Operators" are used to defend the British League space base and Alpha Centauri 1. The base is then attacked by superpowers that want to dominate the planet. A British League Test Pilot named Dobbert fired the Maniac and destroyed the Moon Base. He also escaped to a spaceship, piloted by Martin Bridget, and was cornered by the Galactic Cannon Guards. After ejecting, the ship crashes into the ground, but Dobbert survives. The Trussardi Space series, a British League space opera dubbed "Galaxy Cannon", is sponsored by the BBC and sees a similar plot to the first film in that a Galactic Cannon is needed. This time, it's formed with the US, the former Soviet Union, and the Soviet Union. The Galactic Cannon is built on the moon, and it launches as the Trussardi Orbital in an effort to intercept enemy ships and destroy their defenses. Dr. Claus Cool witnessed the scene above and escaped in a capsule, with Martin Bridget's former ship the Science Academy. 3 years later, the students and their professor Keith Inigata come across Trussardi Space personnel hiding out in Cryogenic Cells, frozen hard. A Battle between humanity and the men of Trussardi Space erupts.
