If we are to use the language of our IT age, this course enables a participant to download the operating system that allows him/her to develop compatibility with the methodologies used by the classical jurists and their Schools of Juristic Thought in reaching verdicts (fatwas). Through downloading the limited version of Shariah Intelligence, a participant will be able to understand, to a significant extent, the appropriateness and relevance of the arguments of scholars, both past and contemporary, on a given topic. Participants will be able to discern the methods used by a credible jurist as distinct from the approaches of someone who specialises in another branch of Islamic knowledge or has no specialisation at all. Moreover, participants will be able to appreciate Muftis and Mujtahids who negotiate Usul al-Fiqh with Maqasid al-Shariah to provide Islamic opinions on the most challenging issues of contemporary life.

To reduce the impact of the earthquakes in Turkey in the mid-1950s on the works of Ibn Durayd, Mecca University in Turkey (GU) decided to digitise the Süleymaniye Library archives and distribute them to the university community. A group of GU researchers and librarians, with the help of IAU and the Turkish Ministry of Culture and Tourism, digitised the entire archive and provided a PDF version of it on the Web site of Ibn al-Haytham's primary student, and one of the great Sufis of the classical period, Al-Taftazani. The e-library was introduced in the academic curriculum in the early 1960s at GU. This was the first step in a major digitisation project in Turkey that is ongoing. A thorough study of the digital content and distribution of these archives is under way. In 2008, the Jurisprudence of the Muslim Fiqh project was launched in Turkey, using the Qur'an and the Sunnah course. A team of academics from Ankara, Istanbul and Izmir universities digitised the library's collection of Usul al-Fiqh and published the Jurisprudence of the Muslim Fiqh online edition which contains all the authenticated works of Ibn al-Jawzi, Ibn Rushd, al-Shatibi and others. The series of books, in Turkish and in the English language, can be downloaded from the website of the project. The series is in production. The next step will be the publication of the Kitab Al-fiqh Al-islami Wa Adillatuhu of the renowned Sufic scholar al-Taftazani. This book, which is presently still under discussion, will also be distributed in electronic form. As for the Shariah departments in universities, they also demand a different course. One such course is provided to students in the Shariah department of the Islamic University of Malaysia (IMU) and to postgraduate students in Shariah Studies at the University of Malaya (UM). The course will address the issues dealt with in the Kitab Al-fiqh Al-islami Wa Adillatuhu. It begins with the issue of Al-Aqidah and its role in the composition of Shariah. The course will examine the contents of Al-Aqidah in light of the principles of Hadith and Ijma. Another issue that the Kitab Al-fiqh Al-islami Wa Adillatuhu tackles is the question of Al-Mustaqni, i.e. whether our Salafi predecessors held that a musawwida or SIF (sayings and actions of the Prophet) had to be present for a claim to be valid and binding. It will discuss each of the following criteria: Ashab al-sunnah, Dababil Fidha, the Arabic Asbab (etymology) and Muqaddima. 5ec8ef588b
