acquire is a very powerful video editing software. once we have acquired the software, we will be able to add layers to our video, crop the edges, or add text labels. a wide variety of effects and transitions that can enhance the video, add titles, and make the videos a little more interesting. we are able to create different formats or different screen sizes. with this software, we can edit our videos or our own videos. venices primary format is super 35mm, which is more compact than anamorphic 35mm, but has a greater depth of field for both close and longer shots. the 36x24-mm full-frame sensor can read out up to 12-perf super 35mm. venice can support any aspect ratio with its 1.85:1 anamorphic, 2.39:1 or 17:9 curved screens. this format can be useful to produce innovative narrative content on super 35mm cinematography, for instance 3d or very wide screen compositions. when shooting super35, it is essential that your lens has a minimum of 1.4x the aspect ratio (i.e. wide-angle for 1.85:1) as the sensors wide-angle crop factor. converters, filters and most dslrs these days have 1.6x and 2x super35 crop factor. this is where the biggest advantage of shooting in super35 comes into play: creating a wider view of the scene than anamorphic counterparts (like super16). many dslrs will not be able to shoot super35 in native resolution, due to the missing sensors data. they can be used with anamorphic lenses to fill the extra pixels space. many anamorphic lenses can also be used for super35

shooters with the nikon 1 v1.5, v2 and v3. the xpanoview h001 is one of the cheapest, easiest super35 lenses to shoot on.
