The Festo Software Tools (FST) is a suite of programming tools designed to program for programmable logic controllers, or PLCs, which are specially crafted for automation purposes. Festo defines automation as using processors and machine to undertake technical processes without constant human intervention. To this end, Festo has designed both hardware and software (which is FST) to carry out these tasks, implementing the necessary functions for registering, processing and output of the electronic signals. Such implementation requires programming and the processing of logical and mathematical links, which was previously done by mechanical means such as hydraulic devices. With the advent of computers and as components of these devices become more portable and programming becomes mainstream, these tasks are now nearly exclusively done by a special kind of computer called a PLC. Unlike programming for personal computers, programming for automation technology like Festo tools do not require constant human attendance for it to work. The Festo Software Tools provide the programmer and the technician to specify the particular instructions for a machine to do exactly as it was meant to do without having to frequently check the results of the work. Festo is a global player and an independent family-owned company with headquarters in Esslingen am Neckar, Germany. Festo has set standards in industrial automation technology and technical education ever since its establishment, thereby making a contribution to sustainable development of the environment, the economy and society. The company supplies pneumatic and electrical automation technology to 300,000 customers of factory and process automation in over 35 industries.
