So I decided to use NSURLConnection but since NSURLConnection isn't available for Android, I searched for an alternative and found GCDWebServer. It can host a server on port 80 and also return a JSON as well as XML as the response. I could host a server using GCDWebServer and I can do a request to the same server from my iphone. But I haven't tried with a Android device. I tried with the following code. It is showing http error response, but it seems it fails at 3rd line of the code because TAR_REQUEST = R.drawable.ic_launcher; shows an error : ic_launcher can't be resolved. Is there any other alternative for NSURLConnection in Android? int i = 0; __block NSMutableData *data; NSURL *url = [NSURL URLWithString:@""]; NSURLRequest *request = [NSURLRequest requestWithURL:url]; NSURLResponse *response; NSError *error; NSData *result = [NSURLConnection sendSynchronousRequest:request returningResponse:&response error:&error]; NSString *responseData = [[NSString alloc] initWithData:result encoding:NSUTF8StringEncoding]; NSString *finalResponse = [responseData stringByReplacingOccurrencesOfString:@" " withString:@" "]; NSLog(@"response status: %@", finalResponse); A: If you're just trying to fetch a HTTP page for display in a WebView, you can use NSURLConnection as you would in iOS. If you're willing to
